

Managing Millennials™

Managing Millennials™ is an experiential training seminar that provides managers with clear insights into the complexities of managing the millennial generation. It strengthens managers' ability to establish productive relationships with their unseasoned direct reports. Participants leave this program with skills, tools and insights for improving the performance of their millennials.

Learning new relationship skills helps managers to think outside the box. The result is that management skills are delivered from a new and more effective relationship-based paradigm. Managing Millennials goes beyond the old ineffective directorial model to show managers how to grow morale, promote productivity and deliver greater profitability.
